

a place dug up, and she goes to work! Of course, she doesn't always know when to stop digging, but I enjoy her company anyway."

In the Fall, Piper noticed a strange thing happening—the leaves from all the big trees in the neighborhood began to come down. The leaves piled up along the street curbs and all over the yards. Piper loved the crunchy, crackling sound of the leaves as she ran through them. Another thing she liked about the Fall season of the year was the snappy cool weather.

One brisk afternoon, Piper began tugging full speed ahead on her leash, making Mr. Duncan almost run to keep up with her.
