

they said to her, “Piper, you have to watch the house,” she knew she wasn’t going out with them. This Sunday, they put on just regular clothes, and then called her to go somewhere with them.

Once a year, all the people in the city were invited to bring their pets to church to be blessed at the Sunday service. What a day this was! The church courtyard looked like a zoo! Dogs, cats, rabbits, birds, and even snakes, were brought to receive a blessing.

It wasn’t very far from the Duncans’ house to their church, so the ride in the car was a short one. Piper hardly got settled into her car seat before they were there.
